The coffin came too short and had to be sent back and made over, and the grave had to be lengthened a bit at the last moment. When at last she was safely as most children of 5. At 13 she had laid away a little sardonic wind started her full growth and was ashanied to be among the bushes and made a rasping laughter. It was the comment of nature upon her preposterous daughter. Later, when the night came, the moonlight which she loved streamed over her grave; the lake intoned with solemnity. A peace and loveliness brooded over everything. It is posaible that through the spaces which the moonlight sweeps a soul, liberated from hampering flesh, darted with ecstasy. It could enter God's presence clothed in its inherent majesty. was released from the thrall of the

SOME WHYS ANSWERED.

The Ancient and Curious Origin of Panillar Customs.

From the Cincinnati Enquirer: It is not surprising what a number of little things we do without knowing the reason. Why, for instance, do widows wear caps? Perhaps you may say because they make them look pretty and interesting. But the real reason is that when the Romans were in England they shaved their heads as a sign of mourning. Of course, a woman couldn't let herself be seen with a bald head, so she made herself a pretty cap And now, though the necessity of wearing it has pased away, the cap remains around the crown and let the ends fall on the left side to be grasped on the arising of a squall. Hence the custom arose of the father of a bride making a present to the bridegroom of a shore, as a sign that it was to be bis right to keep her in order.

Novel Way of Leveling a Chimner.

An engineer recently made an interesting report to the British Institution of Mining Engineers on the feiling of a huge chimney, which was so high and constructed so similarly that the prospect of demolrhing it by the slowand expensive means of breaking it down from the top was appelling to the owners. The engineer who was intrusted with the task of devising a better way of taking it down decided that he would try to full it us one would fell a free, with the exception The letter was really a way of pain, paraffin, wood was piled up high Ill the he was told the west tway infinites afterward the chimney fell exactly on the line marked out for it. throwing the uniternal down, but by Pit, In addition, many thousands of bricks
